JURY UPHOLDS $100,000 BUSH WILL

Salem, Nov. 6.—Dr. John S. F. Bush, late Andover physician, was sane and his $100,000 will stands, the jury in Salem Probate Court decided today in a verdict reached after a number of hours of deliberation. The will contest was waged by his eldest daughter, Mrs. Ella Agnes von Szengelly of New York, who was left $30,000 in trust. The bulk of the estate was bequeathed to the younger daughter, Miss Theoda Bush, Wellesley.

GALE AND RAIN LASHING ATLANTIC

Halifax, N. S., Nov. 6 (A.P.).—A violent storm is raging in the middle North Atlantic, says a radio message from the cable repair steamer Lord Kelvin. The steamer was running before a southwest gale when the message was sent. Her bridge, engineroom telegraph and forward boats had been damaged.

SUITOR SHOOTS WOMAN AND SELF

DIES WITH BULLET IN BRAIN WHEN HIS LOVE PLEA IS TURNED DOWN

Rockland, Me., Nov. 6 (A.P.)—John Leo, a rejected admirer, shot Mrs. Willard Chapin of Tillson avenue today and committed suicide by shooting through the brain.

Mrs. Chapin is at Knox Hospital in a very dangerous condition.

No motive for the crime was given, but it was said that Leo became desperate because his advances were not returned. The shooting took place in a thickly settled part of the city, and the shots were heard by many persons.

Mrs. Chapin ran to the bakery of Osta Ferrero and telephoned to the hospital for an ambulance, which was sent for her. The bullet entered her body just below the heart.

Mrs. Chapin is the wife of a plumber. They have three sons, two of whom, Jasper and Charles, are well-known high school football players.

Leo was a shoemaker.

BRITISH WAR BRIDE DIVORCES HUB HERO

Declaring that her husband burned two of her party dresses during their honeymoon in Switzerland and that he chased her maid from room to room while intoxicated, Nancy Reece of London was granted a divorce decree nisi from Robert Reece of Boston and Hamilton in the Suffolk Superior Court today.

Of a pronounced British blonde type, Mrs. Reece came from England to secure the divorce and calmly told her story on the witness stand. The Reece family is prominent and wealthy.

Reece was an aviator during the World War and Mrs. Reece drove an ambulance. The flier and the British girl first met at the front in France.

They were married in London in 1919 and went to Switzerland on their honeymoon. It was in Switzerland, she testified today, that he first showed signs of cruelty toward her. He touched a match to two of her pretty party dresses and prevented her attendance at a social event.

Coming to Boston to live after their honeymoon, she testified that Reece was often under the influence of liquor. She said he chased the maid from room to room.

On another occasion, the witness testified that Reece tried to strangle her in a closet.

COMEDIAN W. C. FIELDS IS SUED FOR $100,000

William C. Fields, well known comedian, has been sued for $100,000 by Philip Goodman of New York in Suffolk Superior Court, the latter alleging a breach of contract. Goodman charges that in June, 1924, Fields agreed to work for him for three years, beginning September 1 1925, and that Goodman was to star him in a new musical comedy.

Fields, he says, was to receive 10 per cent. of the weekly proceeds with an absolutely guarantee of $2,500 a week even if the gross receipts did not reach that amount.

In addition, according to Goodman, he promised 1 per cent. of the receipts from any comic scenes or sketches that Fields might write.

The actor was also to be free to accept any moving picture offers providing they did not interfere with his stage work under contract. It is stated.

Goodman claims Fields has failed to carry out the agreement. The Zeigfeld Follies, Inc., and Edward Rosenbaum are named as trustees.

Killing of "Soulless" Girl Starts Wide Controversy

International Newsreel Photo.

Here is Dr. Harold Elmer Blazer, on trial in Colorado for killing his daughter, a thirty-four year-old imbecile. His defence that she was "soulless" is unique in American jurisprudence and has caused tremendous interest.

THE lights twinkled in the gathering dusk of a Colorado mountain town that sat still and serene in the frosty night fast encompassing the hill country.

It was the shank of the evening of February 24, the hour of the measured twenty-four when the 4,000 inhabitants of high-perched Englewood, in Arapahoe County, were settling down after the labors of the day to their daily measure of peace and rest.

All but one!

In a tiny cottage house, silent as the grave it had constituted for thirty-four years, an aged physician sat—moody, brooding, fearful of the creeping frailties of age, the dimming sight, the

CHARGE YOUTH SEIZED AS SWINDLER WANTED IN SEVERAL CITIES

Worcester, Nov. 6 (A.P.).—Raymond W. Buron, twenty-nine years of age, arrested in Woonsocket for the Massachusetts State police and turned over to State Detectives Robert E. Molt and Edward J. McCarthy, is wanted, according to Massachusetts officers, in several cities and towns on charges of swindling banks by means of forged checks.

The officers claim he has obtained between $75,000 and $100,000 in this way during the past two years.

Although arrested on a specific charge of passing a forged check for $6 on the Maynard National Bank, the State officers claim he is also wanted in Malden, Fall River, Fitchburg, Leominster, Ludlow and Concord. When arrested he had in his possession blank checks on banks in several places.

The State police allege Buron has been posing as an idling millionaire and had quarters in Worcester, Fitchburg, Leominster and Woonsocket. They claim his arrest resulted from an attempt made last Friday to pass, in the Concord National Bank, a check colored with the forged signature of a Concord notary public, who signed as an automobile registration clerk for him.

The teller of the Concord bank knew the signature of the notary and held the check for identification but Buron hurried way. Later, it is charged, he used the notary's signature in passing the check in Maynard.

The Concord bank has secured the number of its automobile and it was by this means that Buron was traced and captured. He is to be turned over to Middlesex County officials for trial in Concord.

SIX IN ONE FAMILY PERISH IN FLAMES

Ballston Spa, N. Y., Nov. 6 (A.P.)—Six persons, all members of one family, are dead, burned beyond recognition, and a seventh is hovering between life and death, victims of a fire which destroyed their bungalow early today.

The dead: George Kemp, forty years old; Mrs. George Kemp, his wife; Viola Allen, fourteen years old; Myrtle Allen, nine years old; Carol Allen, ten years old, and Marcina Kemp, eleven years old.

The seventh, Beatrice Kemp, is so critically burned that physicians fear her removal to a hospital in Saratoga Springs might prove fatal.

The girl, who escaped with her clothes in flames, told the coroner, Dr. Robert B. Castree, that she awakened to find the bungalow in flames.

Five of the bodies were found huddled in one room of the one-story bungalow.

From the position of the bodies, Dr. Castree said he believed Kemp had found a way of escape and had turned back to find the rest of his family, when flames closed their way out.

WEST VIRGINIA SQUAD TRIES OUT BRAVES FIELD

Up from the South today came the West Virginia University football squad thirty-five in all. Hopping off the train at the Back Bay station this afternoon was a regular little fellow, Captain "Red" Mahan of the visiting team, with a smile from ear to ear, with a determined snappy answer that the gunning West Virginia lads will bring down the Boston College Eagle in tomorrow afternoon's game at Braves Field.

Right with Captain Mahan was Coach Ira Rodgers, who is chief director of the visiting football team, rated as one of the best in the country. When asked as to the outcome of the Saturday matinee attraction, Coach Rodgers said:

"We are out to play our best

THINK LOST NEW YORK GIRL IS HIDING IN BOSTON

Miss Mary McTiernan, pretty seventeen-year-old daughter of Dr. James McTiernan of No. 276 Park avenue, New York, is missing and is thought to have fled to relatives in Boston.

The case was put reported to the New York police and today [illegible] McTiernan. It is said Dr. [illegible]'s wife was a Miss Esther McDennell of Boston and that she left her daughter a large sum upon her death five years ago. Dr. McTiernan said he and his daughter could not agree upon educational matters and that for the past two years she had been living in the south apartment at No. 14 East Fifty-second street, New York.

The girl has not been seen in the apartment building according to the police, since 10 o'clock last Monday morning. When last seen she was wearing a small fur coat, an old rose silk dress, flesh-colored stockings and tan pumps. She is five feet three inches tall, weighs 114 pounds and has a fair complexion, light brown hair which she wears bobbed.

The father advises his daughter had no intimate friends as far as he knew and knows she might have taken a burned trip to Boston to see relatives.

Markets at a Glance

IN NEW YORK.

STOCKS—Market very strong. Du Pont up over 21, General Electric up 12.

BONDS—Speculative issues higher.

COTTON—Quotations steady.

FOREIGN EXCHANGES—Sterling steady, francs easier.

IN BOSTON.

STOCKS—Coppers advance. St. Mary's up around 5. Bingham and Atlas Flywood up around 2, latter at new high.

BONDS—Quotations are steady.

RED METAL.—Prices are firmer.

IN CHICAGO.

GRAINS—Wheat has setback, corn and oats fairly firm.

New York, Nov. 6 (A.P.).—Stock prices forged upwards today in the face of an unusually heavy volume of profit-taking and bear selling.

Bullish enthusiasm was created by the drastic cuts in taxes proposed by the House Ways and Means Committee, further reports of expanding trade operations, stiffening pig iron prices and rumors of increased and extra dividends.

Motors received less speculative attention, although General Motors was run up to around 148 on reports that the expected extra dividend may be as high as $5 a share, which would mean a total distribution of over $2,500,000, which owns a large block of General Motors stock, soared 22 points to a new high record at 270.

Other high-priced industrial issues also developed extreme buoyancy, particularly General Electric, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, Coca Cola and Brooklyn Edison, which were run up 5 to 10 points.

Coppers reflected the improved demand for the red metal, and the prospect of an early resumption of dividends by the Anaconda Company. Oils gathered strength as trading progressed, and the rails also displayed a firm undertone.

LINER CITY OF ROME IN DISTRESS AT SEA

New York, Nov. 6 (A.P.).—A tug has been ordered to the assistance of the passenger steamer City of Rome, reported by wireless to the directing offices here to have sprung a leak off Delaware Breakwater.

The report from the captain to the Savannah Line said the leak was slight. The steamer, bound from Savannah to Boston, had on board about 15 cabin passengers.

The tug, which left New York last night, will aid in pumping water from the ship's hold. The line's officials expected the City of Rome then would be able to continue to Boston under its own power.

It was explained that temporary repairs had been made to the steamship after its collision on the night of September 26, with the submarine S51, in which thirty-three members of the submarine crew lost their lives.

The City of Rome was to remain anchored off the Delaware Breakwater, inside the Delaware Capes, until arrival of the tug.

MALDEN MAN IS KILLED UNDER EXPRESS TRAIN

Samuel J. Kaplan of No. 40 Madonna street, Malden, agent for the Prudential Life Insurance Company, was instantly killed today near the Grove street bridge, West Medford, by the Montreal flier on the Boston & Maine roadbed.

The insurance man, who was 40 years old and married, was walking the tracks and is believed to have failed to hear the express train as it bore down upon him.

The train ground him to death before it could be brought to a stop. Identification was made through insurance papers in Kaplan's pocket.

TRUCK PLUNGES INTO HARBOR, DRIVER SAVED

Patrick J. Sullivan of South Boston narrowly escaped death today when the provision truck he was driving plunged through the rail of the Dorchester avenue bridge into Fore Point Channel.

Sullivan lost control of the truck when it was struck by an automobile on the bridge.

As the heavy machine hurtled through the air, the driver leaned clear, falling into the water several feet from where the truck went down.

Bystanders flung him a rope and he was pulled to safety, not much the worse for his experience, with the exception of a bruised arm. The truck is submerged.

Sullivan's home is at No. 68 B street, South Boston.

HEIRESS TO MILLIONS GLAD SHE IS ACTING IN "THE MIRACLE" HERE; HUB IS PLEASED, TOO

Eleanor Patterson, daughter of the Chicago millionaire newspaper publisher, Joseph Medill Patterson, is happy in her chosen field. She admits she was a trifle frightened the first time she faced a Boston audience in her role as the "nun" in "The Miracle" (now playing at the Opera House), but that is now past and almost forgotten. She says she had been warned that Hub audiences were the most critical on earth, but, on the contrary, found them most kind. She is pictured above in characteristic poses, and in one view Morris Gest, producer of the play, is shown with her.

NEW FIGHT BY CHAPMAN TO CHEAT NOOSE

Hartford, Ct., Nov. 6.—Gerald Chapman has not yet despaired of escaping the hangman's noose.

Faced with the discouraging verdict of the State Supreme Court that he was justly found guilty of the murder of a New Britain policeman and sentenced to die on December 3, Chapman has instructed his attorney, C. W. Murphy of Danbury, to ask for a writ of habeus corpus from the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Murphy will, acting upon his client's orders, seek the writ from Judge E. S. Thomas on the contention that the State can not execute a Federal prisoner.

Doubt that Chapman would hang was expressed today by Attorney Frederick J. Grosch, who was among Chapman's counsel at his trial.

Mr. Grechi said efforts would shortly be made in Federal Court to have Chapman returned to Atlanta to complete his twenty-five-year sentence for a New York mail robbery.

He also expressed belief that Chapman could not be legally executed while ostensibly a Federal prisoner.

Faced with death within a month, Chapman retains his calm and says that the verdict was "just as he had expected."

WANTS NO PARDON.

Even the adverse opinion has failed to rock his stoical attitude. "I would not accept a pardon from my Federal sentence, even if it were forthcoming from President Coolidge," was Chapman's retort to the possibilities of such an event.

There is little heroical in such a statement, however, as the acceptance of such a pardon would only destroy his lawyer's belief that the State can not hang a Federal prisoner.

Patrolman James Skelly of New Britain was the victim of the shot claimed to have been fired by Chapman as he was surprised while blowing a safe in that city. Chapman is said by the State to have fired the fatal shot, without the officers' there threatening to kill.

HARD PRESSED FOR CASH.

According to the testimony brought out by the State at the trial, Chapman was hard pressed for funds following his admitted escape from the Atlanta penitentiary, where he was serving a twenty-five year sentence for the sensational hold-up of a United States mail truck in New York.

He was driven from pillar to post—beyond reach from his teacher, "Dutch" Anderson, who was killed a few days past in a Michigan city—and was desperately in need of money.

An acquaintance with Walter Shean, son of a reputable Springfield business man, laid the paths for the New Britain robbery, which ended in murder, according to the State. Shean, however, did not participate in the dramatic finale. It was claimed, and he contented himself with remaining at the wheel of an automobile which the State contends was to have taken Chapman away from the scene of the robbery.

Society Girl Talks on Pleasure in Acting

By ELEANOR F. PARKER

Daughter of America's Aristocracy of Ability—and lovely and alive in body, brain and soul as only an American girl can be—Miss Eleanor Patterson sat in her sunny drawing-room at the Hotel Lenox and told how it feels to play a leading role in a great dramatic production.

"You see," she said, "I have always wanted to go on the stage ever since I was just a little girl. My family, well, they thought that I was something of a freak to be so ambitious, and so last winter I came out in society in Chicago," she laughed, "just to get it over with."

Miss Patterson is the daughter of Joseph Madill Patterson, one of the publishers of the Chicago Tribune, a war correspondent, playwright author, and millionaire. He went to the World War as a private and, when the armistice was signed, was in command of a battery of Artillery in the Rainbow Division.

FRIGHTENED AT FIRST

"It was a very marvelous piece of luck that my first attempt on the stage should have given me such an opportunity as to play a part in the 'Miracle,'" she said. "I had no idea that I could get anything but a very minor role when my uncle in New York asked Mr. Gest to consider me. It was discouraging at first because Mr. Gest said that all the places were filled. Imagine how I felt when he interviewed me and after only a few moments conversation told me that I might play the part of the Nun.

"You can't imagine how frightened I was over my first appearance here in Boston. Everyone says that Boston audiences are very much more critical than those in other cities, and much more intelligent in their criticism, and I was terribly nervous, but they were very good to me and I am so happy to be here."

"I have so much trouble with my black veil too. You see, I have to take it off and put it on at different times and I always get it on crossed. It is very difficult. I never get it on straight."

While Mr. Gest posed with Miss Patterson for the photographer he kept up a rapid-fire conversation—"Silly business, isn't it, having your picture taken? Always makes me feel like a fool. What must I do with my fingers? Must I hold it up or down? Foolish to have your picture taken."

PRAISE FROM GEST.

After the pictures were taken Mr. Gest reminisced in snatches about his former production of the "Moscow Ballet"; how he worked for two years getting permission for the production in this country, and risked every penny that he possessed on its success.

He praised Miss Patterson in a few words for her first performance of the "Nun" in a way that showed the spirit of idealism that animates this extraordinary group of artists. It was obvious that his praise meant keenness to whom it was given.

"Mr. Gest," said Miss Patterson, after he had gone, "is the most wonderful man in the world. And to carry out his marvelous conception of what the 'Miracle' means is the one ambition of us all. It is a tremendous task to be able even to conceive all that is meant to be expressed in such a great spectacle. I have seen practically every performance in which I have not taken part, since I was a member of the company and every time I see it or act in it I realize a new meaning—a new idea."

BOSTON MAN ON JURY TO TRY MACRI GIRL

By BERT FORD

Litchfield, Ct., Nov. 6.—Hollis B. Griffin, a former Boston man, was today selected as the fifth juror at the trial of Olympia Macri for killing her sweetheart, John Bagnano.

Griffin is the youngest of the jurors sworn to date. He is twenty-eight and looks younger. He is at present a resident of Litchfield, is married and has no children.

He gave his occupation as farm superintendent. He said he formerly was employed by the Sampson-Murdock Company in Boston, directory publishers.

The first two talesmen called, Arden S. Tanner, Warren farmer, and Edwin A. Haring, a farmer in Kent, said they could not free their minds sufficiently to serve. They were excused.

Haring admitted some women had telephoned his wife about the case, but pressed by the prosecutor he was quick to parry any intended false impression that might be raised by the incident.

"The matter had been talked at the Grange and some of the women simply chatted with my wife on the phone," he said.

Olympia Macri's heart was flooded with gladness today. The burst of sunshine that followed the storm didn't compare with the arrival of little Lucy, the child without a name, innocent cause of the tragedy for which Lucy's girl mamma is on trial for murder.

Baby Lucy's arrival last night from New Haven at 11:30 caused a stir. It was quite an event locally. A crowd gathered outside the court house. Among the first to greet Lucy was the Rev. John L. McGuiness, pastor of St. Anthony's Church.

Girls Had to Read Bible for Playing With Chums

Cleveland, O., Nov. 6 (AP)—Two girls, one seventeen, one fourteen, were summoned into court today to hear methods of discipline imposed by two women, their keepers for seven years.

The charges were made by Mrs. Marjorie Roberts, Women's Protective Association investigator, following complaints from the neighbors.

Mrs. Roberts said the girls had been raised "in stay in the house." They couldn't play or talk with other children at school. Violation of these rules resulted in their being locked in their room with nothing to read but the Bible.

SHERIFF KELIHER IS REPORTED IMPROVING

Sheriff John A. Keliher, who drew a badly inflamed knee out of the mayoralty campaign, started on the up grade today at the Phillips House of the Massachusetts General Hospital. The sheriff, according to Dr. David D. Scannell in attendance, is "doing very well" and is responding to treatment. Sheriff Keliher injured his knee during the campaign when he attempted to step into his automobile. The injury proved a severe handicap, but he stuck gamely in the fight until the end.

MANNION DEATH CASE IS GIVEN TO JURORS

Medical Examiner Magrath of Boston Is Criticised by Defense Lawyer

Portsmouth, N. H., Nov. 6.—The fate of Thomas W. Mannion, charged with the murder of his wife, Helen Agnes, was placed in the hands of a jury today.

The case was given to the jury at 1 o'clock, after about two hours of summing up on both sides.

Immediately thereafter the jurymen were taken to lunch, after which they began their deliberations. A quick decision was expected.

The action of Dr. George Burgess Magrath, medical examiner of Boston, was criticised by former Attorney General Irving Hinkley, in summing up for the defence. He said Dr. Magrath, testifying for the State, declared his ethics would not permit him to express an opinion that might save the life of an innocent man. On the other hand, Hinkley said, the medical examiner's ethics had allowed him to discuss the case fully with defence lawyers, before announcing he would it a practice never to appear for the defence in a capital case.

The lawyer added that in his opinion the only fact the State had proved, was that Mrs. Mannion was dead.

Attorney-General Jeremy Waldron demanded a verdict of guilty of first degree murder. He said the defence had passed over and ignored evidence of a scuffle before the death of Mrs. Mannion. He why he ran away after the woman's asked why Mannion had carried a razor around with him for nearly an hour before meeting his wife, and adjourned to Tuesday of next week. Justice Charles J. Dunn granted request of a large group of attorneys, representing many of the holders of dorion contracts, opportunity to inspect the books of the corporation.

GIRLS BARRED AT DEATH TRIAL

Judge Oliver Branch, presiding at the trial of Thomas W. Mannion, Jr., alleged wife slayer, does not believe in morbid curiosity and ordered Lora Brewster and Muriel Thomas, freshmen in the Portsmouth, N. H., High School to be escorted from the courtroom. The girls are shown above, Miss Brewster at left.

READING HEARS BRIBE CHARGE BY BRADBURY

Cambridge Building Removal Story Talked Over at Conference

District Attorney Arthur K. Reading and Councillor Harold M. Bradbury of Cambridge, were closeted in conference for nearly an hour in an effort of the Middlesex prosecutor to determine whether the Willow street building moving permit case included in its ramifications any attempted violations of the law.

The conference came as a result of the charges made in the City Council Chamber by Bradbury, to the effect that an attempt to bribe had been made "outside the City Council." Bradbury, after insisting that no member of the city's governing body was at fault, said that he could not discuss the case other than with the district attorney.

It was as a result of this statement that he was summoned to Middlesex Court buildings to talk with Reading.

The investigation came as a result of the petition filed with the city's governing body in which permission to move the building at No. 160 Willow street, was asked. After an investigation the committee on roads and bridges, headed by Bradbury, filed with his main body a derogatory report and the petition was denied.

No argument was offered at that time but at the next meeting Councillor Charles Sisk moved for reconsideration. It was at this time that the insinuations that "bribery outside the City Council" was in the making, were forthcoming.

Councillor Arthur Drinkwater then asked for the appointment of the investigating committee. President McCarthy appointed the committee and Drinkwater was made chairman. The petition was refused.

300 TALESMEN IN CARBARN SLAYING CASE

Two Suspects Go on Trial in the East Cambridge Court Monday

The five defendants charged with killing James Furman, watchman at the Waltham car barn during the holdup which netted the thugs $1,800, will go on trial next Monday in East Cambridge court.

Judge Frederick Fosdick has been appointed to hear the case and a venire of 300 has been summoned for the jury.

It is expected that all of Monday and part of Tuesday will be required for the impanelling of the jury.

The defendants are Joseph H. Bennett, Peter King, Edward Heinlein, John J. McLaughlin and John Dervereaux.

PUPILS' SAVINGS STOLEN AT CAMBRIDGE SCHOOL

Thieves forced the lock on a window of the Kelley School, in Willow street and, after ransacking the classrooms, escaped with about $20 in cash and the keys to the school bank in Cambridge.

This was the fifth time, during the past few months, that police have received reports of burglaries in local school buildings.

Two closets were broken open by the thieves in their search for the money, which the pupils had deposited with the school authorities in opening savings accounts.

NO CHANGE IN VOTE OF SCHOOL WINNERS

Although final revision by the election commissioners showed today a number of candidates for school committee had lost or gained votes, the list of successful aspirants was unchanged in standing.

The final figures gave Sullivan 74,944; Barron, 70,615; Bogan, 68,866; Gray, 56,730, and O'Hare, 55,379.

ASKS BOOKS OF LOVE IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

A campaign for more love stories and fiction to be read in the schools was urged by Frank W. Wright, divisional director of education, speaking before 600 school teachers at the opening of the 66th annual Essex County Teachers' Association Convention at Tremont Temple today.

Mr. Wright said the large number of sex books and immoral stories being read by children can only be curtailed if teachers allow the reading of light love stories in the classroom.

"Wet" propagandists are responsible for the attacks on the morals of high school boys and girls, according to Dr. Oscar Taylor Corson, author and lecturer.

"Liquor sympathizers have started all the scandal and gossip about high school parties and dances. They are attacking the morals of our boys and girls to make the people believe our own laws cannot be enforced," he said.

"It is not uncommon to hear vicious reports of liquor served at school dances and boys going about in drunken condition. These stories are not true. The boys and girls of today are better children than the ones I knew as a boy."

Corson, who is a director of the schools of Ohio, pointed out the late "Christie" Mathewson as the ideal of "Christian sportsmanship" from whom every boy and girl in America should find inspiration.

"How Mathewson's mother had prayed earnestly while Christie was a boy that he should become a minister, was revealed for the first time by Corson.

"We need never fear a second whitewash if we keep alive memories of our first," Corson continued. "Fun never needs immorality for a background.

"Boys and girls of America face more temptations than did the youth of 50 years ago. They face situations that may lead them astray if they abuse their freedom. The youth of this country is all right, and it is up to the schools to keep them so."

WOMAN AGENT FOR SHIP LINE

Boston, within a few months, will have its first woman passenger agent operating in the trans-Atlantic steamship service. Miss Hilda Anderson will leave for her duties as Boston passenger agent of the new service between Boston and Gothenburg, Sweden.

The line will sail its first boat, the Stockholm Gripsholm, from Boston on May 7, and in addition to this craft the Stockholm and Drottningholm will be in service, with sailings every three weeks.

Representatives of the line are now in Boston making final arrangements. Company offices will be with Furness Withy & Co., Ltd. No. 10 State street.

GORDON HEARING HELD UP TO INSPECT BOOKS

WAR HEADS HOLD UP DORCHESTER BAY PROJECT

Gallivan Is Assured No Action Will Be Taken Yet on Major Powell's Report

Congressman James A. Gallivan, of South Boston, announced today that he had just received positive assurance from Major-General Harry Taylor, chief of engineers of the War Department, that no action will be taken on the adverse recommendation of Major H. G. Powell, district engineer of the War Department, Boston, relative to the proposed improvements of Dorchester Bay and Neponset River, until all parties interested have been given a hearing.

Major Powell, in his report to the War Department, said the improvement would not result in benefits commensurate with the cost.

Congressman Gallivan has been fighting for the improvement ever since he has been a member of the Congress and has vigorously opposed the report of Major Powell, bringing to the ears of the officials of the War Department, the facts that large tracts of undeveloped property bordering on Dorchester Bay and Neponset River are now vacant.

He told the officials that these tracts would be available for industrial and commercial purposes should the channel in question be widened and deepened.

Sight Aided by Fasting, Expert Declares

London, Nov. 6 (A.P.)—Fasting relieves the eyes and also the other organs of sense and makes them more acute, in the opinion of Clement Jeffery, a naturopath. He believes in the prevention of defective vision and its improvement in methods other than the use of eyeglasses.

"The chief point is that the efficiency of the eyes depends to a large extent on the quality of the blood that keeps nourishment to them," said Mr. Jeffery. "Their delicate mechanism can be clogged by overeating, particularly of sugar, just as the wheels of a watch are interfered with by dust."

KIDNAP CREW OF TRUCK; GET $30,000 IN SILK

Armed Bandits Use Costly Limousine in Staging Daring New York Crime

New York, Nov. 6 (A.P.)—While three armed men in a costly limousine kidnaped the driver and his three helpers, two other robbers today drove off with a truck loaded with $30,000 worth of silk.

The robbery took place amid hundreds of pushcart peddlers and their customers who fill the sidewalks in Harlem during the morning hours. The silk was the property of the Silk Finishing Company of America.

The robbers crowded the truck to the curb at 106th street and First avenue, and forced its crew to get into the closed car which was driven to 125th street and Amsterdam avenue. There they were put out and the kidnapers sped away. The truck, minus its load of silk, was abandoned at 96th street and First avenue.

Chased Thieves

When two thieves grabbed her handbag on College avenue, Mrs. Christine Meroney of No. 43 Otis street, Somerville, gave chase, but they were too fast. The bag was valued at $5 and contained $1.

of the best known shipping men in the world.

Graduating from Cambridge, he was brought up among ships, as his family owned the Booth line, which had the lion's share of the trade between Brazil and England.

Young Booth was taken into the offices of the Booth Line, and worked his way to the top. While still a young man he became a director of the Cunard Line, and was elected chairman to succeed William Watson.

In 1910 he was the subject of a laudatory sketch and article in the Porcupine, a newspaper published in Liverpool, which pointed out that he was possessed of every qualification to be chairman of the board of directors of the famous steamship company.

NEW TRANS-ATLANTIC MOTOR SHIP IS SUCCESS

Gothenburg, Sweden, Nov. 6 (A.P.). The marine myth that it was mechanically impossible to build a motorship for fast passenger service has been dispelled by the results achieved in the trials of Sweden's new steamless ocean greyhound, the "Gripsholm."

Equipped with two great motors, producing jointly 16,300 horsepower, the liner of 23,500 tons displacement made an average of 17½ knots, which means that the direct trip from Gothenburg to New York will be cut down to less than eight days, as compared with the customary nine or ten.

FIND MAN SLAIN ON EVE OF HIS MARRIAGE

Williamstic, Me., Nov. 6 (I.N.S.).—Within twenty-four hours of the time he was to have been married, Giuseppe Distefano of Willimantic was found dead in the back yard of a Meadow street house with a rifle bullet wound in his head. Distefano had been missing almost a week, and though friends and relatives searched the State for him no one was able to find a trace of the man till his body was located today. Police believe he was murdered.

USUAL CLIMAX FOLLOWS KEROSENE IN RANGE

Greenfield, Nov. 6 (A.P.).—Edward J. Bushey of No. 52 Grinnell street poured kerosene on a fire which had been built in the kitchen range of his home here today and was badly burned about the hands and face in the resulting explosion.

Some defect in the fire alarm system delayed the apparatus and $2,500 damage resulted.

CHELSEA IN TERROR OF WILD BULL

Three-Hour Panic as the Animal Runs Amuck, With Crowds in Pursuit

had cornered and roped the bull between two houses at No. 23 Lash street, and the animal had been carted back to Malden, from whence he had escaped, did the panic subside.

ESCAPED LAST NIGHT.

Where the belligerent bovine spent the night hours is a mystery, for he escaped last night from the barn of his master, Jacob Spivik, at No. 124 Bowdoin street, Malden.

Today he was sighted loping along the Revere Beach parkway heading into Broadway, Chelsea, and dashing at automobiles that approached or passed him.

The police were notified and Motorcycle Officer John Dwan chased the animal from Broadway into Stockton street, where he was cornered.

GORES AUTOMOBILE.

But the bull turned on his pursuer and the officer, leaping from his machine, had barely time to crouch behind its protecting mass when the sharp horns of the infuriated animal crashed into the machine as he attempted to gore the policeman.

Then the bull was away again through streets, over lawns, through back yards—crashing through fences as if they were paper, trampling the last remnants of gardens, upsetting barrels and buckets, bowling over clothes-line posts, and in general conducting himself in a very crude manner.

TRAPPER BETWEEN HOUSES.

Up over Powder Horn Hill the chase led and across the parkway again until the bull finally made the error of diving between two houses in Lash street.

Here the sheer weight of numbers overcame him, whizzing ropes fell over his head and about one hoof. The bull was felled and trussed up by Bloomfield Smith of Chelsea.

Spivik later arrived with a truck and took his pet home.

PENSION PLAN FOR AGED IS RULED OUT

The proposed constitutional amendment providing pensions for persons over 70 years of age, the money to be raised by a constitutional tax, is unconstitutional, according to Assistant Attorney General Goldberg, who today rendered this opinion on the old age pension petition which included the names of Alice Stone Blackwell, Ex-Governor Eugene N. Foss, Joseph LaFontaine of Hamilton and others.

Mr. Goldberg said no enabling pension bill could be drawn and made a law under the present constitution, if such a pension is to be paid. Mr. Goldberg said it would appear that the constitution of the State must be amended. The opinion was based on the ground that the present petition contemplates spending public money for private purposes.

The special committee appointed by Governor Fuller in 1924, of which Judge Grant Hall of Boston was chairman, to study the question of old age pensions, will probably report this week, recommending to the Legislature that every indigent citizen of the State over 70 years of age be eligible for financial aid from the State, the maximum date being $7 a week.

The recommendation also provided that the cost of this pension be met by increased taxation, including the addition of one-half percent on all State income taxes and the levying of a $2 poll tax on men and women alike.

TWO GIRLS AND MEN HURT IN AUTO CRASH

New Hampshire Car Wrecked in Collision With Truck Near Newburyport

Newburyport, Nov. 6—Four persons, two men and two young women, were seriously hurt today when the sedan in which they were riding was demolished in a crash with a heavy auto van near this city.

The injured were taken to the Anna Jaques Hospital, where they described themselves as Roland P. Shaw of West Rye, N. H., driver of the car; Eugene E. Daly of Somerset street, Portsmouth, N. H., and Nellie Keller, 27, and Josephine Rand, 23, both of Exeter.

Shaw suffered cuts about the head and may lose an eye from glass cuts; Daly has a possible fracture of the skull and multiple other injuries; Miss Keller has other serious injuries besides a fractured right arm and Miss Rand suffered a broken left ankle and other injuries.

The sedan was driven by Shaw at the time it hit the heavy moving van, belonging to the State Moving Co. of Boston, and driven by Samuel Rubens of No. 193 Woodrow street, Dorchester, with Thomas McDonald of Teleedale road, Dorchester, as helper.

Neither Rubens nor McDonald was injured.

The crash came so suddenly, say the injured, that they cannot realize how it happened. The small car into which they were crowded was reduced to junk by the heavy impact with the heavy truck.

Rubens, as soon as he could bring a truth to a stop, awoke persons in the neighborhood, called the police and then rendered first aid to the four injured motorists. An automobile party finally came along and acquainted their places in a large touring car and the machine was rushed into an ambulance and the four injured taken to the hospital.

The wreckage of the sedan was piled up piece by piece, placed on trucks and brought here.

STORIES DIFFER.

It is said by the police the injured men had been out on auto ride late last night and were returning home when the crash took place. Although they told the police they were only running at a high rate of speed, Rubens stated the small car was traveling fast when it crashed into the truck.

The occupants of the small car were spread over the road by the impact and at first Rubens thought all four had been killed. He and McDonald succeeded in staunching the flow of blood from all their wounds while awaiting the arrival of help.

Shaw is a salesman for the B. Franklin Peel Automobile Company, of West Rye, and is believed to have owned the wrecked machine.

RUBENS' STORY.

"We were not running at a high rate of speed," Rubens told the police. "We saw no lights and did not know there was a car approaching until the sedan flashed into the glare of our headlights. It was too late then for me to swing the heavy truck out of the way and the sedan hit its head on and went to pieces. We were showered with broken glass from the windshield of the smaller car, but were uninjured and I was able to continue my trip after McDonald and I had cared for the four injured parties."

The crash is being investigated by both the local and the State police who are awaiting a chance to question the injured.

IMPORTS IN HUB SHOW $68,000,000 INCREASE

Imports in the Massachusetts Customs district have increased by more than $68,000,000 over the receipts of a year ago during the first ten months of the year, according to announcement today by Collector W. W. Lufkin's office. Duties paid have increased by almost $5,000,000. The month of October saw an increase in value of imports of more than $3,000,000 over the same month of last year.

Duties paid for October imports this year amounted to $4,356,119.81, as against $2,894,182.92 last year. As a result of the increases shown thus far Custom officials anticipate a record-breaking total for the year.

HUB LIBRARIAN TO BE BURIED AT READING

The funeral of Horace G. Wadlin, former chief of the Bureau of Statistics of Labor, who died at the Winchester hospital, will be held tomorrow afternoon, with services at 3 o'clock at his home, No. 61 Woburn street, Reading. The Rev. M. Franklin Ham of the Unitarian Union Church, Reading, will officiate. Burial will be at Reading cemetery.

AGED WOMAN BADLY BURNED LIGHTING GAS

Beverly, Nov. 6.—Mrs. Sarah S. Parmenter, seventy-seven years old, of No. 30 Lovett street, was seriously burned about the arms and body today when her nightgown caught on fire while she was lighting the gas in her bedroom. Her screams attracted Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Locke, neighbors, who gave her first aid. Mrs. Parmenter is at Beverly Hospital in a critical condition.

Heroes of Fire

Hoseman John Hackett (top) and Ladderman William Hughes, heroes at Roxbury fire. Hackett was badly hurt in a 35-foot fall.

The rescue of a seventy-year-old woman and the serious injuries suffered by Hoseman John Hackett of Ladder 14 marked a two-alarm fire in a tenement house at Nos. 123-125 Calumet street, Roxbury. Hackett is in City Hospital suffering from a fractured skull and possible internal injuries suffered when he fell 35 feet from a slipping ladder.

Ladderman William Hughes, with Battalion Chiefs O'Malley and Parrott, Gilmore, brought Mrs. Laura Harrison down a ladder after she had been overcome by smoke in her room on the top floor. Mrs. Annie B. Hackett was also rescued by the firemen.

'OLD IRONSIDES' REPAIR BEGINS

Work on plans for rebuilding the frigate Constitution (Old Ironsides) was started today at the Charlestown Navy Yard with Lieutenant John A. Lord in charge. It is estimated it will cost $500,000 for the restoration of the ship, the most prized historical treasure in the United States Navy.

Rear Admiral Philip Andrews of the First Naval District is chairman of the Save Old Ironsides Committee. The Elks raised about $200,000 during Old Ironsides Week, October 19-24 and it is expected the remainder of the fund will be raised without difficulty.

James R. Nicholson is chairman of the Elks drive committee.

SHOWERS BRING BOSTON TOUCH OF SPRING

But Weather Bureau Admits Tomorrow May Have the Real Snap

A breath of Spring greeted Bostonians today. The thermometer rose rapidly during the night, accompanied by typical April showers and this morning it reached a high mark of 43 degrees.

Weather experts, however, do not advise football fans to forget their wraps and blankets tomorrow, for the mercury is expected to take a drop during the night and real Fall weather is predicted for the games.

Warm weather was general in the eastern half of the country today, but the northwest still suffered under an extreme cold wave. Although the glass shows this wave to be gradually moving East, it is not expected that Boston will get it for at least another week.

Rain is falling through the middle western States.

TAXI COMPANY'S STAND HEARD BY REFEREE

Decision on Permanency of Injunction May Be Made Next Monday

Harold Williams, Jr., as referee, today gave a hearing on the merits of the injunction granted the Checker Taxi Company, restraining its striking drivers from interfering with the operation of its cabs.

Several witnesses were heard, and the hearing was continued until Monday. On the findings of the referee will depend whether or not the injunction will be made permanent.

Among the witnesses were Walter Ryle, one of the drivers who was set upon and beaten in a street car by a group of young men Wednesday night. According to his testimony the strikebreakers are receiving $4 per day, the wage demanded by the strikers, and their board is being paid by the Checker company.

During the hearing Attorney Gallagher declared that the Smithwick brothers, former drivers, who were arrested in connection with the assault on two drivers, were not members of the union.

Fifty checker taxicabs were placed in operation today and the number will be increased when 100 drivers hired within the past week have been granted hackney licenses, according to Frank A. Sawyer, president of the company.

GIRL VICTIM IN RUM DEATH IDENTIFIED

Body Found in South End Hallway; Name Said to Be Levin

Huddled into a corner of the vestibule of a building in Newland street, with two wounds across the scalp, the body of a young woman said by the police to be Katherine Lavin was found today and it was at first thought by the police and Medical Examiner Timothy Leary that she had been the victim of foul play.

The police were working on murder theories when their activity was halted by the results of Dr. Leary's autopsy, which showed the woman had died the victim of acute alcoholism.

After his preliminary examination Dr. Leary had announced that he believed the wounds on the woman's head had caused her death and the police at once suspected murder. The body is in Southern Mortuary. Dr. Leary stated that he will call for an inquest.

DYNAMITE CAP BLAST HURTS 3

Pawtucket, Nov. 6 (A.P.)—Helen Frietas and Joseph and Alexander Grougin, Central Falls children, were burned about the face and chest today when the girl, with a stone, hit a dynamite cap that they found in a vacant tenement.

The children were taken to a hospital, where it was found the girl was seriously injured. The police found about 100 dynamite caps in the house.

CONTRACTOR FINED $129 IN FIRE HAZARD CASE

Charged with failure to obey an order from the State fire marshal's office James F. Barry of Winthrop, a teaming contractor at No. 141-145 Border street, East Boston, was fined a total of $104, $5 for each day he ignored the order when he appeared in East Boston court today. He was charged with violating the ruling for 32 days.

The order provides for the elimination of a fire hazard in his building. He was also fined $25 for loading hay an durain stored in a building used as a dwelling in violation of the law.

1,000 GALLONS OF ALKY IN FURNITURE VAN

West Warren, Nov. 6 (A.P.)—One thousand gallons of alcohol, concealed beneath a load of furniture on a truck driven by John Kaplan of Dorchester, were seized by State troopers near here today while they were checking up licenses and registrations on the State highway.

Kaplan and his helper, Morris Shofski, also of Dorchester, were arrested. Kaplan later was sentenced here to three months and a fine of $100 and was committed in default of bail on appeal. Shofski paid a fine of $100.

6 AUTOISTS INJURED IN CRASH AT NASHUA

Nashua, N. H., Nov. 6.—Six Nashua persons were injured when their touring car collided with a car registered as belonging to J. B. Soule of Concord, N. H., at Main and Alder streets today. Ralph McKinley suffered a broken jaw and fractured ribs. His wife and Mr. and Mrs. George McKinley and Edith and Isabell Rose also suffered injuries requiring hospital treatment.

'MERCY MURDER' JUSTIFIED BY BOSTON MAN

tottering footsteps that stumbled him through his daily rounds of ministering to the ill and comforting the dying.

Within the range of his feeble eyes a dreadful monstrosity squirmed on the floor: a figure with the form and semblance of a child, distorted grotesquely, like something seen through a prism-glass or in a cracked mirror.

Armless it was and legless, a mere hulk of a thing, with the torso of a half formed infant, but with the bigger head of an imbecile adult, with eyes that looked and saw nothing and the open-hung mouth of an idiot.

Deaf it was and speechless, a squirming, wriggling thing that brought nausea to the stranger as it grovelled on the rug, but only an overwhelming pity and compassion to the aged doctor who had fathered and nursed and nurtured his monstrosity for thirty-two long years.

Years of patience and endurance, but suddenly the suffering of this crawling "thing," the realization that his own feeble days were numbered; that when he was gone no one was left to care for this creature from some strange outer world—came upon the physician.

He rose suddenly, swiftly seized up chloroform and a rag, pressed the soaked cloth to the nostrils of the monstrosity that drooled on the floor, and its squirmings ceased for all time.

Dr. Harold Elmer Blazer had killed his own daughter and the human husk that he said had held no soul was returned to the clay from which it had come.

He attempted afterward to end his own fast-flitting life, but recovery came and now they prepare to try him for what the law calls murder.

In Littleton, a town nestling in the shadow of Denver, a few miles south of a community called Love Land and another few miles east of a hamlet named Fair Play, the task of picking a jury has begun.

But meanwhile the whole world, at last made aware of the story behind the tragic night of February 24, sits in judgment on the man who could see his flesh and blood suffer no longer and who ended the pain, if there was pain, and put the soul to flight and freedom—if there was a soul.

Messages of compassion and calls for mercy are pouring into the town of Littleton where Dr. Blazer will be tried for the murder of Hazel Ingrit Blazer.

One such letter, received at the office of the Boston Evening American today from a Greater Boston man, reads as follows:

My reading of the tragic details of the Blazer case in Colorado has instilled in me only a white-hot fury for the things that are practiced in our land in the name of justice.

While brutal murderers escape the noose, and baffling mad and potential murderers go free because prosecutors have been "rushed," a hysterical district attorney in Colorado mouths in unctuous fashion of murder and the rights of the people to justice.

Dr. Blazer, and there can be no doubt of it, was actuated solely by humanitarian motives in ending the sufferings of his monstrous daughter.

Any man with feeling can understand the sudden breaking down of his iron nerve that made possible the snatching of his daughter's horrible existence through thirty-four years and his accomplishment of the act which he undoubtedly did not realize he had done until it was completed.

I believe, and I have no hesitation in saying so—that his hand was directed by the Divine Being, whose laws are above human laws.

There is no crime, or no least suspicion of crime connected with the kindly physician's act, and he should not suffer.

This is the opinion of one man. What do you think? Is Dr. Blazer in right in ending his child's existence, or should he have been convicted by sir by and watch the monstrosity drag on in terrible existence?

Demands Jail Sentence For Slayer of 'Soulless Daughter'

Denver, Col., Nov. 6—The following is the reply of District Attorney Joel E. Stone in the trial of Dr. Harold E. Blazer, charged with the murder of his "soulless daughter," to Lewis E. Mowry, chief counsel for the aged physician:

By JOEL E. STONE.

The defense, I understand, will try to prove Dr. Blazer insane and I shall contend that insane or otherwise he was not justified in killing his daughter to put an end to her misery. I will resist this injection of maudlin sympathy into the trials.

Who are we to say that this woman had no right to live?

Who are we to say when she or anyone decides put on earth by the Supreme Being shall cease to live?

How do we know what was in this woman's mind?

Who is there that can say she had no mind—that she had no soul?

Who will dare say that she did not suffer the same torments, the same agony, the same pain, mental and physical, as any other normal person when the deadly poison was forced into her system?

Hazel Blazer may not have been able to talk or walk but who is there to say that she could not feel?

WELL PLANNED MURDER.

The evidence will show that this woman was fully developed above the torso. Below the waist she was as an infant but a few months old. Her affliction was the result of spinal meningitis. Medical authorities tell us that this disease often destroys and distorts the human frame but it does not destroy the brain or the soul.

Was it the act of a mad man to feed this woman poison—then force food down her throat to make sure that the drug did its deadly work and in further make certain his work, administer chloroform?

The killing of Hazel Blazer was a deliberate, well planned murder.

It was not a fear that she would be left uncared for but rather an unwillingness to be bothered with his own offspring in the shape of this poor cripple that inspired Dr. Blazer to commit murder.

The defense says that for thirty-two years Dr. Blazer cared for his invalid daughter and that he did so with love because he feared he was going to die and leave her alone.

CARED FOR 32 YEARS.

The evidence will show that Hazel Blazer was cared for and nursed by her mother for thirty-two years. Less than a year after the death of the mother, the father tired of his responsibility and killed the daughter to free himself of the responsibility of her care.

There was no more reason for him to fear for her future last February, than there had been for years previously. His health was no worse than it had been six months before, nine months before or even now.

I will contend, and the evidence will bear me out in my contention that Dr. Blazer's act was in no manner or means justified. I will resist any and every attempt to show that the crippled woman had no soul.

I will prove that Hazel Blazer had a mind and had a soul and was wholly human and under the law had the same right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness as any other human.

Battle of "Soul" Experts Opens Today

Littleton, Col., Nov. 6 (I.N.S.)—The battle of psychologists and psychiatrists that is expected to determine the innocence or guilt of Dr. Harold Elmer Blazer, sixty-year-old "country doctor," on trial in district court here for the slaying of his thirty-two-year-old imbecile daughter Hazel Ingrit Blazer, got under way today.

Selection of the jury to try the "cold-fashioned" physician was expected to be completed soon after court convened and Joel Stone, prosecuting attorney, was to make his opening statement.

OUTLINE DEFENCE.

In further outlining today his theory of temporary insanity in the form of "physical automatism" that will be the foundation of the defence, Lewis Mowry, chief counsel for Dr. Blazer, declared the defendant's condition was the direct result of thirty-two years of love and devotion to his stricken daughter.

"The girl's malady," the defense attorney amplified, "came in attacks of numbness in the facial muscles and tongue, created arterio sclerosis and resulted in loss of memory during period of which the body acted without volition of the mind or will.

During one of these spells, that continued for forty-eight hours, the defence will contend, Dr. Blazer took the life of his idiot daughter and made three attempts to destroy himself.

But the shrewd-faced, small-eyed defendant is not in harmony with the declaration of his attorneys.

PLEADS MEMORY LOSS.

"I do not agree with the new fangled ideas of scientists and psychologists who say it is merciful, just and humane to get rid of the physically unfit And imbecille," the old doctor declared during the lull in the court proceedings. "As a physician it has for years been my duty to preserve life. For more than 32 years I cherished that helpless child and performed my duty as a father to her. Why should I suddenly change my life habit and try to shirk my duty by putting her out of the way?

"If I took the life of my daughter I do not remember it. I do not know how I could do such a thing."

HAVING GOT RID of the king and his power, the [illegible] seeking a [illegible] President.

We forget that power is [illegible] to financial organization now in the [illegible] and [illegible].

IN POLITICS we used to fight about [illegible] and the tariff and the [illegible]. Those issues are worn out, as Mr. Dwight Morrow says, and [illegible] now are centered on alcohol and religion. [illegible] issues will pass away, but it always will have something to divide them.

THE RIFF LEADER [illegible] EASY [illegible] disease as [illegible] and gave a [illegible] Pasteur. Pasteur inspires beneficial emotions, they cause in the body chemical changes that banish disease.

THE REV. FRANCIS J. HALL [illegible] suffering with the [illegible] would be good for you. Many people are sick, they lack useful warnings that sickness gives. Science and religion are drawing together.

CONDUCTORS AND TRAINMEN in the West want more money, an increase of $[illegible] a year. If [illegible] railroads [illegible] all the [illegible] to [illegible] Let him who thinks few wage increases prosperity for the big men start something in China. He will find men and women to work for a few cents a day, but [illegible] can't build any great factories, wages are to a certain extent based on [illegible] from top to bottom, and irrigation is to the [illegible].

ABD-EL-KRIM, [illegible] leader of the Riffs, has learned from French airmen that the Moorish courage, illustrated in Schryver's pictures, isn't so valuable now.

The Riff leader, withdrawing as far as possible from the French and Spanish, has dug out a city for himself underground to escape the bombs of the airmen. In those days if you don't fly you don't amount to much in war, no matter how brave you may be. Some day the United States may realize that.

WHATEVER OTHERS may say or do, Mussolini, fighting man of Italy, wants it known that he is ready to fight, if it seems desirable. "Let those who touch our frontiers beware," says he. He attaches no great importance to the "League of Nations," as it is called by Mr. Brady, head of Labor's Federation Bank in New York City.

Mussolini blames upon Free Masonry a recent plot to assassinate him. Now all Masonic lodges in Italy are closed.

DR. A. C. BLAZER had a daughter without arms or legs, deaf and dumb. He took care of the daughter for thirty-two years, then chloroformed her as she slept. On trial for murder, he says he chloroformed his daughter because he didn't expect to live long, and knew that death was better than the life she would lead alone.

HIS LAWYERS allege that he is not guilty of murder, because his daughter "had no soul."

Coke, English authority, says murder is killing "any reasonable creature." Killing the poor, deformed, weak-minded daughter was therefore not murder. She was not "reasonable."

That's a new kind, among the many different kinds of murder and "reasons" for murder.

RELIGIOUS ORGANIZATIONS having protested, the War Department says there must be no "air circus" by army fliers on Sunday. That's "looping the loop," turning over upside down, flying on the edge of one wing, etc., make up an "air circus." This say the clergymen, is irreligious.

IF THEY SAY so, it is so.

But many will think that such an air circus might stimulate faith in Biblical teachings. Certainly angels are human, or if those men in a flying machine just invented can loop-the-loop three times in succession, what can the angels not do, after flying for endless millions of years?

AND AS FOR the speed of flying angels, such as were sent [illegible] from Heaven to earth [illegible] comparable [illegible] it must exceed the speed of light, 186,000 miles a second.

Heaven could not be nearer than the nearest fixed star, which is billions of miles away. That's not fast for speed.

A Story of Love and Mystery That Bares the Heart of the Chief Plotter

PETER BLAKENEY, a carefree young man, is in love with Rosemary Foukes, but he forgets to propose, and Jasper Talkington wins her. Rosemary, a writer, is induced to go to Transylvania and arrange a series of articles intended to clear the air of much international unpleasantness. Instantly she finds herself in the midst of a group of plotters. Even her best friends are arrested as spies, and though her husband is a great help, he always seems to fail in his efforts. So Rosemary decides to watch and wait.

Do Christmas Shopping in November

Christmas Stocks Are Large and Arriving Daily

There Are Many Reasons Why You Should Shop Early—Among Them These:

1. Selection may be made much more leisurely and comfortably, as the inevitable crowds of later on are avoided.
2. Assortments are extensive and there's always pleasure in choosing from first showings.
3. Salespeople have more time and opportunity to render the service we and they are both anxious to give.
4. There will be less tension upon the delivery and other branches of the business—all making for your satisfaction
5. Salespeople—and saleswomen particularly—will be relieved of some of the stress and strain of the just-before Christmas rush.

Christmas shopping in November will mean large assortments to select from and the best possible individual attention and service

As an additional inducement we make the following announcement to those having approved charge accounts or who wish to arrange for such:

All Charges for Merchandise purchased during November and up to Christmas, may be paid or Accounts to be rendered on January 1, 1926

If you have not an account with us, we invite you to see our credit manager about opening one.

And as a further encouragement to early Christmas shopping and as a reward to our loyal Fellow-workers for their faithful services during the past year

We shall pay our regular Christmas Commission of ½ of 1% to each of our salespeople on his or her total sales from November 2 to December 24, inclusive

Our non-selling Fellow-workers will, of course, benefit in their Christmas bonus proportionately with our salespeople

Northampton, Nov. 6 (A.P.).—The Boston & Maine Railroad won and the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad lost here in present-ing for the approval of the Pub-lic Service Commission the reorganization of the Greenfield-Springfield line.

Objections of the operation were effectively defeated, the local license of the Greenfield-Springfield line was revoked and the New Haven ceased to run an extension of its Ce-dar Hill-Northampton trolley line from Northampton to Florence.

The Boston & Maine proposed to begin using the Greenfield equipment on the New Hampton-Florence-Northampton line on Nov. 15 with the approval of the Public Service Commission.

Sweet, juicy Baked Apple
-a Waldorf delicacy for Apple Week

During Apple Week—and every week in the year—Waldorf apple pie (with cheese) is a favorite. Ask for it and know why!

In Waldorf kitchens are big, full-flavored apples in baking pans. Each apple has been washed and its core replaced by pure cane sugar and choice spices. They come from the ovens baked to a ruddy brown, sugar glazed, with the sweet juice oozing out in a golden stream. Here is a delightful Apple Week dish for Waldorf patrons!

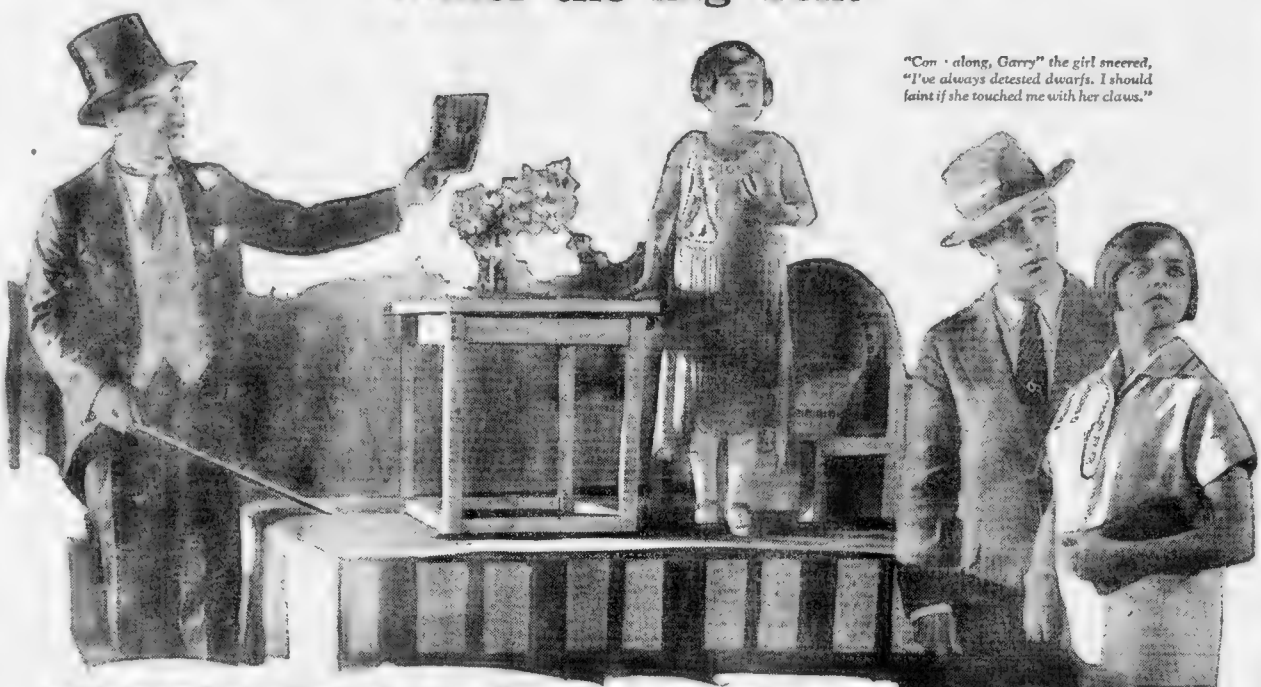
"Princess Fedora's" Secret

A Story of Romance and Heartache Under the Big Tent



"Come along, Garry" the girl sneered, "I've always detested dwarfs. I should faint if she touched me with her claws."

Charming, Cultured, Yet Fated to be a Midget among Side-Show Freaks and Doomed to Raise a Daughter who—

A GAY young couple on their honeymoon enter the Fair grounds and stroll down The Street of All Nations, entertained by the colorful side-shows.

The bride, Margaret, has eloped from a European school, and has not seen her American mother since babyhood. She tells Garry, her society husband, that her mysterious mother in her letters has described herself as an "artiste."

On a platform, wearing to please the crowds a tinseled coronet and a salmon pink crepe de chine with paste ornaments, stands the midget "Princess Fedora."

Margaret, slender, lovely, regal, pauses at nearly every exhibit on the way, amused by Jolly Josie, the fat girl; the Indian sword swallower; Naida the Lily, a beautiful albino; and Joe-Joe, the ape-man.

"Princess Fedora" stares at lovely Margaret. By photographs the girl had sent her and by familiar jewelry she recognizes—her daughter.

There "The Princess" stands—white as a corpse, torn with conflicting passions, looking into the eyes of a daughter who does not dream that she is the child of a circus midget.

Now follows an unbelievable act in this tense, human drama of circus life. Has a midget the heart of a normal woman? Is she as capable of passion and heartache? The answer is in this astonishing real life drama. Finish this story—entitled "For the First Time"—in December SMART SET, the most vital and colorful magazine of true stories on the news-stands.

HAROLD 'RED' GRANGE'S OWN STORY OF HIS LIFE

TELLS OF EARLIEST FOOTBALL LESSONS

HAROLD (RED) GRANGE is the greatest back in football today, perhaps the greatest who ever stepped on a gridiron. The East discovered it Saturday when he ran wild against Penn and the feature of the Eastern team "I to 5"

A scant three hours of peerless grid-ironing, Grange has worked into a

THE GRIDIRON HERO

Trojan to win his place in the sun. During the Summer he is an ice man in Wheaton, Ill. He is a senior at the University of Illinois, captain of his team and one of the greatest figures in sports today.

Grange has agreed to tell his life story in the Boston Evening American in

It is a story full of drama, and full of inspiration. It is full of football fun—for Grange knows football like a book.

Quiet, unassuming, shy—Grange is an admirable character on the field and off. A perfect gentleman, a good student, he represents the highest type of college athlete

As Told By

The second instalment of this absorbing story will appear in tomorrow's Saturday Sport Special.

on the job. When you block don't fall toward your man in half hearted fashion. Take him off his feet. When you tackle pick up your opponent and drop him. Don't allow him to sneak along three or four yards."

[illegible] Grange [illegible] was coached [illegible] got more than he will stand for [illegible] on the actual battlefield.

I DISTINCTLY recall how he [illegible] me out for my mistakes when I first tried to win a place in the backfield. I felt my way at times. It was a long time before I was permitted to run around the field to the sidelines, that is for it.

Even then I was [illegible] my hardest. Since that time I have tried earnestly to overcome my mistakes, but I still have plenty. No one can be a perfect football player. There is much to be learned during a big game.

To my way of thinking Bob Zuppke is the greatest of modern coaches. He has invented many of the most strategic plays seen in recent years, one of the most notable being the huddle system, which is now used also by Iowa, Nebraska, and many of the other leading universities. Moreover, he originated strategy plays to aid the quarterback, and has also organized and simplified game strategy.

He is the sort of coach that can sit down day in and day out and not of essence to tell you what he

Who Will Pick the All-America Football Team? That's Easy to Answer

FELLOW came out in the public prints the other day and began worrying about who would pick an All American football team this Fall, with Walter Camp gone. Don't let that fret us; we will step up and answer "Uncle Treat, Boston Evening American football expert."

Treat's All-American selections will be printed immediately following the Harvard-Yale game. Treat will also pick an All-Eastern team. In tomorrow's Saturday Sport Special, Treat's detailed selections of the day's winners will appear.

The Saturday Sport Special is a four-page field day of news, features and photographs. In the later editions are the play by-play stories of the big games. ON THE DAY THEY PLAY THEM.

Tigers Confident of Win, Says Treat

By HERB TREAT

Boston Evening American Football Expert.

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 6 (by telephone)—The Princeton Tigers are out to win. The attempt to do it is the topic of conversation here. Not only is Princeton out to defeat the Crimson, but everybody is going further. They're out to beat the Bulldog of Yale.

The Tigers are confident of victory with a situation not unlike that which exists at Harvard. The only difference is that both of these next two games must be won or the season will be regarded as a failure. Harvard must be beat and Yale must be too" are the words of Roper.

Princeton is on the verge of outstanding success and a supreme effort is expected of it to the Eli team, which will be here for the next two games.

Only a few days ago the team came into Palmer stadium today the first words uttered by Bill Roper were—"Coach Dobie is going to beat Princeton. I'm going there determined to beat Princeton, and I'm sure we will." Roper was in a determined mood, and he was not disappointed. Princeton defeated Harvard, 21 to 0, and Roper's boys were jubilant.

Shortly afterwards I had a chance to size up the Tigers' offense. It looks very good, much more so than last year. You will find more forward passing in using to beat Yale. The attack on account of the Jake Slagle was in rare form as was Hagan and Dolson. These three backs will be better than any Harvard has to offer. Conway and will continue next year.

Captain Phil Mahan is a fine center and with his 216 pounds and speed he should prove to the some 50 odd thousand on Saturday that he is the best in the East.

The line from end to end will announced today.

Treat Picks:

Princeton over Harvard.
Dartmouth over Cornell.
Illinois over Chicago.
W. & J. over Pittsburg.
W. Va. over B. C.
Notre Dame over Penn State.
Holy Cross over Fordham.

The Tigers' points per man in the starting backfield will average 170 pounds per man.

The team lines were capable [illegible] it has a [illegible] weakness which must be better stated after the game.

and nearer to you. Look was on my side
[illegible] Jasper courted you, and [illegible] lost you.

Then came the question of Transylvania. Nadlaecu entrusted me with the task of discovering the authorship of certain articles that had appeared in English and American newspapers which impugned his administration. He offered me ten thousand pounds if I succeeded in bringing the author to justice, and ten thousand more if certain articles which you were to write were published.

The very first morning that we were in Cluj the girl Anna Heves gave away her secret. Once I had her and Philip under arrest it was easy enough to bring pressure to bear upon you. I almost succeeded, as you know. So while you thought me in Bucharest, I came back disguised as a gipsy and warned Eliza that Philip and Anna were in danger of death. This brought everything to a head.

"Unfortunately Peter Blakeney already suspected me. It began probably in England. I must have given myself away at one time, I suppose, and he is as sharp as a wild cat. He followed us to Transylvania—to make sure, I s[illegible]. Then at Cluj Anna Heves confided in him. The children's arrest confirmed his suspicions, and that night at Kis Imre he recognised me under my disguise as a gipsy. Curse him!

"After that the whole adventure became a battle of wits between him and me. I won the first round when I spied out the plan for Philip and Anna's escape. I won again when I persuaded you to place the whole bargain between yourself and myself before Eliza, and indirectly I used you to write the newspaper articles which he wanted. I thought I had won an easy victory then.

But Peter Blakeney stole your manuscript and I feared then that I had lost everything. The death of Philip and Anna Heves would have been some compensation, it is true, but I wanted that extra ten thousand pounds more than I did the joy of seeing those two children rich.

"I thought that Peter had stolen the manuscript in order to bargain with it for the lives of his two cousins, but I know better now. He sold your manuscript's to Nadlaecu for the Kis Imre property. It will stand in his name until he can hand it over to the Imreys again. In the meanwhile by a clever ruse he has got Philip and Anna out of the country.

Torture His Method

"I am beaten in all, except one thing, I have you. Remember what I said: we are in a country where money can purchase everything, even such treasures as will enable me to divorce you and to raise such a hell of scandal around Peter Blakeney that no decent man in England would shake him by the hand.

"So now you know. I have told you my history, and I have ended Peter Blakeney's virtues—his heroism, if you like to call it so. And I have done it deliberately so that you may admire him, regret him, love him if you must, even while you feel yourself irrevocably bound to me. You are just as much my slave now, as if I had bought you in the open market.

"If you continue to hate me, I shall probably hate you too in the end. But that would not help to free you. On the contrary, I think I would rather amuse me. I was never content to tease a cat, I invariably tortured it."

Jasper Tarkington had been speaking without interruption for nearly ten minutes. Rosemary withstood all without flinching.

When he received his threat that he would call false witnesses in order to create deadly scandal around Peter, and warned her that she was as much his slave as if he had bought her in the open market, she had, quite instinctively, glanced down on the tray which contained the remnants of her supper. There was a knife on the tray, one with a broad blade narrowing into a sharp point.

She shuddered and turned her eyes away, but Jasper had caught her glance. He had just finished speaking, and he went deliberately up to the table, picked the knife up by its point, and with a mocking smile held it with its handle towards her.

"Very dramatic," he said lightly. "Did you ever see La Tosca?"

When she made no reply he laughed and threw the knife back on the table. Then he sat down and lit another cigarette.

There was silence in the little room now. Rosemary had scarcely moved. The horror and indignation which she had felt at first when Jasper embarked upon the history of his life had given place to a kind of moral numbness. She had ceased to feel. Her body seemed turned to stone; even her soul no longer rebelled.

She was this man's wife, and he had warned her of the means which he would adopt to bind her, unresisting, to him. Nothing but death could loosen the bonds which he had tightened by his threats against Peter.

Jasper smoked on in silence. Only the fussy ticking of the old fashioned little clock broke the stillness that had descended over the lonely corner of God's earth like a pall.

A little while ago Rosemary had been vaguely conscious of a certain amount of bustle and animation in the house, and subconsciously she had associated this bustle with the probable arrival of guests who had come off the night train. She looked at her watch. It was half past two. Jasper jumped to his feet.

"It must be very late, he said coolly, "I really must beg your pardon for having kept you up so long. Reminiscences are apt to run away with one."

He put down his cigarette, deliberately went up to his wife and took her by the shoulders.

"Kiss me, Rosemary," he said quietly.

It seemed to amuse him that she did not resound, for he gave a mocking chuckle and put his arms round her. He pressed his lips upon her mouth, her eyes, her throat. Then suddenly he let her go and she almost fell up against the table.

He then walked to his room.

A NEW SURPRISE

Jasper Tarkington, on the point of entering his room, had switched on the light and then paused on the threshold, uttering a gasp of astonishment.

"Maurice!" he exclaimed, "what in the world are you doing here?"

Maurice Imrey was sprawling on the horse-hair sofa, apparently fast asleep. At Jasper's ejaculation he opened his eyes, blinked, yawned, and stretched his arms.

"Ah! my dear Tarkington," he said in Hungarian, "I thought you were never coming."

"But what are you doing here, my friend?" Jasper asked, frowning.

"Waiting for you to do me a little service. It is so late, I don't really like to ask you. But I should be badly stranded if you did not help me."

"What is it?"

"I left [illegible] in the [illegible] press," Maurus explained. "You know that we have all been turned out of Kis Imre. And, by the way, it is Peter Blakeney who has bought the place. Isn't it a scandal? I never thought he would be such a swine. You know he is a near relation of my wife's."

"Yes, yes!" Jasper muttered impatiently. "What about it?"

"Well, simply that those damned officials at Cluj station never told me that I could only get as far as Sot. So I arrived here with my luggage and Anton, and, of course, I found this beastly hotel full. Not a room to be had, my dear fellow. Did you ever hear such a thing?

IN OLDEN DAYS

In the olden days one would just have taken a man by the scruff of his neck and thrown him out of any room one happened to want for him self. I don't know what it's like with you in England, but here—"

"Just so had," Jasper broke in with a curse, "but in heaven's name get on, man. What is it you want me to do?" Jasper broke in impatiently. "Walk over with you and arrange with the man about your rooms?"

"If you would not mind. Or could you let me sleep on your sofa?"

Jasper had hesitated at first. It was close on three o'clock, and he did not relish the idea of turning out again at that hour, but the sofa [illegible] room completion for the night was far more unpleasant.

"Come along, then," he said curtly. "It isn't far, I suppose?"

"Five minutes' walk, my dear fellow," Maurus said with obvious relief. "Just the other side of the stream. And Anton shall walk back with you afterwards."

"I don't want anybody to chaperone me," Jasper retorted roughly.

He had to go into the salon to fetch his hat. Rosemary was still standing there leaning against the table for support. She had very much wanted to see Maurus at one time, but now it did not seem to matter.

Nothing probably would ever matter again. She heard Jasper say, saving in a whisper: "You've heard what this fool wants. I suppose I shall have to go."

She nodded in response. And then Jasper added with mocking courtesy:

"Good night, Lady Tarkington."

ADVICE TO LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been going about with a girl for some time and have asked her to marry me. Without any hesitation she agreed to do so.

We have set a certain year in which we are to be married, and both her family and mine are satisfied with the match.

I have not given this girl a ring, except a signet ring that bears my initials, the reason being that we want to keep this matter to ourselves.

My question is this: Are we engaged or not?

Must an engagement ring, if one is given, be of the diamond type, or may it be any type?

W. S. B.

OF course, you are engaged, since Your fiancee has agreed to marry you and both your family and hers have approved the match. The engagement doesn't depend in the least on a ring. Some engaged young women prefer not to wear a ring.

The engagement ring is merely a charming symbol of the bond of love between two persons. A diamond solitaire is the usual choice, but an engagement ring may be of any type preferred. Usually a girl takes great pleasure in going with her fiance to select her own ring.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

To remove coffee stains from a doll cute material, brush the marks with glycerine, rinse in lukewarm water and press on the wrong side.

Rusty iron can be cleaned with soft soap and pulverized.

Before sewing on hooks and eyes, boil them in alkaline soda water. This will prevent them rusting in the wash.

* * *

When you wish to warm up a joint, let it stand in cold water for about three minutes before putting it into the oven. This will make it taste almost exactly like freshly cooked meat.

Piping the Tune

DRAWN BY POPINI

THE tune of life—and Love—is what you pipe it to be. Your chains of keys will govern all your existence. Perhaps you'll choose a soft minor, with a melancholy echo that will reflect in your whole being. Every action and thought will be governed accordingly and people will say you're such a sweet thing, but rather depressing, don'cha know! Or perhaps your keynote will be of martial, major strain that you'll fire people with your unceasing energy and boundless strength of character. Why not, then, choose a middling key that will strike the right note of harmony in the hearts of all those with whom you come in contact? It can be done, you know, and will make friends and will endear you to everyone.

And you'll find that it's most efficient when your own true Love comes along. Sometimes, then, you'll change the tune a little bit to please Love—and if you do this you're wise. For Love is exacting the tune that Life has chosen for you—so see to it that you carry the melody in your heart always.—POPINI

MAKING OF A HUSBAND

By Anne Lisle

SMARKING hands with me in the perfunctory manner in which college boys greet the chaperon of a prom house party, Mr. Perry slipped Jeanie's hand under his arm and led the way to the front door of a big rambling house of gray shingles, red shutters and roof and many shining attic gables. The house was surrounded on [illegible] with wide [illegible] porches. The fourth side to the left and north had a wall of glass windows and was obviously a studio.

As we entered the enormous hall which divided the house in two, a little old lady came hurrying toward us from the front room on the right which was evidently a living and dining-room.

"I make you welcome to Hedgerow," she piped, even before Mr. Perry could present us.

Jeanie was very gracious to the tiny, gnarled figure with its silver white hair, big blue eyes, indomitable mouth and nervous hands. While the two were exchanging greetings, something made me turn back toward the front door through which we had entered. The door were outside, looking like nothing so much as they lay on the porch. Sudden by I saw a figure dart from behind the box hedge on the left and rush to the steps and touch the big police dog. The animal turned his head, considered the girl before him for a moment and then got up and followed her. It all happened so fast that I was hardly sure whether I had seen or dreamed the [illegible] pursuing a dingy green with flying dull gold hair was reminiscent of [illegible] one and so I felt sure I merely imagined her.

"Arlette!" I said suddenly to myself under my breath, as I remembered it was of May Vallean the girl reminded me.

"I'll be putting the kettle on for brew, Master Nicky," she said amazingly, to the giant. "You take Mrs. Jamie Harrison and Miss [illegible] room to the studio, and I'll be making ready and saving [illegible] chilver who need to get [illegible] appearance."

She bobbed [illegible]

"Wait," said Jeanie [illegible] to Nicholas Perry. "I'm not Mrs. Harrison. I'm not Miss [illegible] I'm Mrs. Patrick Dalton."

"Quite so," said Mr. Perry [illegible] movement of [illegible] shall we see the studio now?"

Jeanie's face was a [illegible] If it hadn't been too absurd I should have thought she looked [illegible] the calmness with which Mr. Perry received the information that she is a married woman.

As I followed Jeanie and Mr. Perry toward his studio I continued to marvel at the scene that had just been enacted under my [illegible]

A GOOD STYLE FOR A SCHOOL DRESS

It is also good for velveteen [illegible]

[illegible] had told Mr. Perry that she [illegible] and not, but "Mrs." Patrick Dalton. Mr. Perry had taken this information with the casualness [illegible] acquaintance ought to show at such information. Jeanie had looked crestfallen. It was all petty and absurd but vaguely disturbing.

To be continued tomorrow.

THE KINDNESS OF ACCEPTING

I [illegible] an art to know when to accept as well as when to [illegible]

I [illegible] it people have that joy sometimes, even though we fear to take their gift, thinking it too costly, or unsuitable, or that it will cause mis[illegible] We [illegible] us under [illegible] rather [illegible]

Once upon a time I was visiting [illegible] house where I chanced to admire an old piece of brocade thrown over a [illegible] dismay, when I left, the host and pressed the beautiful thing upon me.

I was greatly embarrassed [illegible] noted that the couch her [illegible] drapery was quite [illegible] my friends' [illegible] by the war. I knew they were [illegible] how [illegible] planning precious belongings [illegible] was actually carrying off something that would leave them poorer still.

Then I caught the look in my hostess' face. It said to me as plainly as words: "Do not rob me, Madam, of this chance to do a gracious thing. Do not make me feel that I have lost all opportunity to be generous. Let me keep my pride. Let me not feel that I am [illegible]"

I accepted the [illegible] The giver's eyes glowed and the little lift of the chin and straightening of [illegible] showed me that [illegible] the giving of that which is treasured and means sacrifice brings the realest and deepest pleasure.

And do not think that even the smallest, humblest gift is unappreciated by those who have much.

I once met a very rich man carefully carrying a tiny parcel wrapped in tissue paper. To my glance of surprise he answered, "It's a pin cushion Mary So-and-So made for me. It is so seldom anybody takes the trouble to make anything for me!"

People took from him, but if they ever thought of giving in return they were usually discouraged by the fact that he "had everything" and wouldn't care for what they could afford.

Ah, yes—one must know how to take as well as give.

By ARTHUR WYNNE,

Originator of the Modern Cross-Word Puzzle.

Letter the word ANAGRAMS in capitals across a strip of paper about five inches in length. Then cut the letters apart, but don't use any of them. You will observe that in the accompanying diagram the second A happens to fall in the heavy-bordered square. Discard that letter. Rearrange the other seven letters and construct words, which you must supply yourself, so that they spell an eight-letter word corresponding to the definition below. Letter that word in across step 1 and repeat the performance, progressing to step 2 and so on down to the bottom step.

DEFINITIONS.

1—The driver of an English drag, or four-in-hand coach.
2—Directors of business establishments.
3—Articles of clothing.
4—Remainders.
5—Transparent cases enclosing a lamp or light.
6—An untidy or negligent housekeeper.
7—Snakes having tails ending in a series of horny, loosely connected rings.
8—Suddenly frightened.
9—Levers operated by the foot to impart motion.
10—Forsaken.

LANDLORD OF N. Y.

By Barbara Boyne

AT the age of 18 John Jacob Astor, the butcher's son who founded the Astor fortune, came from Waldorf, Germany.

He lived with an old German, George Disterich, a baker, at 351 Pearl street, for whom he peddled cakes. Then he started a little German toy shop. But the tales of the trappers fascinated him and he determined to take a chance in the fur trade himself.

He began by peddling skins, buying them where he could, carrying a pack on his back from which he bartered cheap jewelry, toys, etc., for the skins.

It expanded until his own ships carried the pelts to London and China, returning with rich cargoes of teas and silks. Sometimes his profits on a single voyage reached $70,000.

But he had bitter rivalry and much competition in the West, and finally withdrew from the contest. But he had accumulated enough to venture into other fields. Envisioning himself as the founder of a rich landed family, Astor secured vast tracts of land in various States, but he concentrated the bulk of his speculations on Manhattan and invested in mortgages.

By foreclosure he secured the "Cosine farm" for $23,000 and the "Eden farm" for $25,000, properties then on the outskirts of New York. Today they are in the heart of the city, covered with skyscrapers.

The butcher's son became known as "the landlord of New York." His chief heir, William B. Astor, already possessing $5,000,000, increased the $20,000,000 left by his father to $100,000,000, which he left to his two sons, William and John Jacob II., who was lost in the Titanic disaster.

Immense areas of land in Harlem and The Bronx passed into the possession of the Astor family, and the fortune based primarily on the fur trade expanded to include mines, railroads, city transportation systems, gas plants and industrial corporations.

In 1911 the collective Astor fortune was $480,000,000. With increased values, it is estimated today at more than a billion dollars.

BEDTIME STORY

A GOOD WAY TO CATCH TURTLES.

By Foxy Grandpa

ZANZIBAR. Do you know when I first heard of Zanzibar? I thought it was a place where there were only cannibals and that these cannibals spent most of their time eating up missionaries?

But I was wrong. Because when Bobby, Bunny and I went to that island off the eastern coast of Africa do you know we found a city on the island by the same name where big ships stop and much business is carried on!

One day Bobby, Bunny and I strolled down by the waterfront and then on to a little cove in the harbor.

Bobby, naturally on the lookout for anything which he might see in the water, was walking just as close to the water's edge as he could without falling in.

"Now, don't get your shoes wet," I cautioned him.

"All right, Foxy Grandpa," said Bobby, obediently, "but you ought to see this big turtle down here in the water."

I looked down, and sure enough there was one of the finest turtles I ever saw.

"Let me see," said Bobby, reaching in his trouser pocket, "I think I have a hook and line with me."

He caught the turtle, but he was too heavy for the hook and it broke off and Mr. Turtle got away.

Bobby was adjusting a new worm which he had just found when a native who was standing by watching us came up very bashfully, holding something in his hand.

It was a fish, which the dark man was offering to Bobby and Bobby was smiling until he showed his ten-year old molars.

Now this kind man of Zanzibar couldn't speak any English but soon he made it clear to us that he wanted to fasten the fish on the end of Bobby's line.

It was very strange, but Bobby was interested and in a few minutes the fish was secured on the fishing line and the black man was dangling it down in the water.

We all watched the performance wondering what the idea was, when what do you think happened? The fish which was alive and kicking swam around for a moment and then at the very instant which he saw the turtle, he swam up to it and fastened himself on to it. The native pulled in the fish with the turtle attached right up to the surface and smiling hauled it out, loosened the fish and presented the turtle to Bobby.

Bobby's eyes opened like two saucers as he seized the turtle.

"Who would ever think of using a sucking-fish to catch turtles!"

FINANCE

BY B. C. FORBES

Many companies are increasing their dividend disbursement without waiting for Congress to cut taxes.

The records kept by this column reveal that October brought a flood of proved dividends, whereas only 47 companies took similar actions a year ago.

In the last ten months no fewer than 578 extra, or initial, or increased, or resumed, or stock dividends have been declared. This compares with 454 during the first ten months of last year. The increase has been no less than 124.

Of the grand total of 578, industrial companies account for 466. The Public Utilities group come next with 89, while the railroad contribute 23.

The form which the cheerful dividend action has taken during October is brought out by the following table:

	IND.	P.U.	R.R.
Extra	39	2	0
Initial	10	1	0
Increased	10	1	0
Resumed	8	2	0
Stock	4	0	1
Back	2	0	0
	54	8	2

Total for month 64

The final third of the year promises to be rich all records. September and October brought 146 of these favorable dividend announcements contrasted with only eighty-five a year ago. The monthly record reads thus:

	1925	1924
January	74	74
February	64	49
March	67	47
April	54	45
May	54	39
June	67	47
July	59	23
August	39	23
September	45	47
October	64	37
Totals	578	454

How many different lines of business are sharing in the present prosperity is suggested by the wide variety of companies that took action last month gratifying to their stockholders.

ERA OF HIGHER DIVIDENDS IS WITH US

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor.

There is with us today an era of higher dividends. Increases were rumored for many issues early in the year, and a surprisingly large percentage of these forecasts has made good. The expectation that still more in the way of good news is to come aids those working to pull stock market prices still higher.

Predictions have long been forthcoming from time to time regarding the ore reserves in Butte and the life of the mines. The most recent is that of E. A. Laffoley. Mr. Laffoley has been connected with the geological department of the Anaconda Copper Mining Co for over thirteen years and now holds the position of assistant chief geologist.

"There is no one who could come near setting the figure in years—he is foolish to attempt it. Some of the best ore is being found at great depths. We shave 3,000, 3200 and 3400-foot levels and find the high grade ore, and we have developments at the 3300 showing the same copper streaks and these can be worked as time demands. Says Mr. Laffoley: "Not alone do we depend on our present mines. To the north, west, and east there is much terrain still to be prospected, and while we have great expanses of development to do we can be sure that for a longlong time we can still say 'Butte is the richest hill on earth.'

There has been talk of speeding transmission of stock quotations by two tickers, but the matter is not being considered by the Exchange. Expense of fitting out a complete new wiring system for the present or leased would be too great, it is contended. Exchange authorities, however, are continually on the lookout for means of keeping the ticker close to the market, and are carrying on experiments to this end.

Charles A. Collins, Massachusetts banking member of the Roosevelt committee on St. Paul, questioned as to the basis of these rumors of combination, said: "I am unable to make any definite statement at this time. The action of the securities on the Stock Exchange, however, would seem to indicate that there is some foundation for the rumors."

He states that about 150 of the Massachusetts savings banks have signified to Roosevelt St. Paul junior public committee to be used to loan $1,000,000 and $7,000,000 with the Roosevelt committee. This is on top of a similar holding by the banks of about $1,500,000. In addition to this money other banks, insurance companies and individuals in this State have deposited their funds and also work with the Roosevelt committee.

At special meeting of directors of the Harvard Trust Co., Herbert H. Wood was appointed vice president; Henry S. Ramhoffer, vice-president; Ira W. Hill, vice-president; Arthur M. Wright, cashier; Charles Hall, assistant cashier, and Paul R. Snyder, assistant treasurer.

"Conditions in our territory indicate that freight traffic during the rest of year will be much larger than in 1924," said H. E. Byram, controller of the St. L. & S. F. "While our loadings in October exceeded those of last year by a good margin, earnings will not show a corresponding increase as most of freight handled was of low-rate character. What should begin moving soon, and, together with the corn crop, should make for increased earnings, I believe our railway operating income for 1925 will be about same as in 1924."

Sales Tax the Solution

If Federal Levies, Against Which Everybody Kicks, Were Repealed, Country Would Face Deficit

If those Federal taxes against which everybody kicks were repealed the country would face a deficit of about $3,000,000,000 next year instead of the surplus of $300,000,000 which now seems likely.

But such an imaginary deficit provides just the opportunity to effect genuine tax reform as well as tax reduction. Mayer D. Rothschild, an attorney of New York, has written to the chairmen of the Congressional committees in charge of finance showing this in plain and simple fashion.

The answer is the sales tax. Mr. Rothschild estimates upon good grounds that a tax of 1 per cent. only on the turnover of business in this country would produce $2,098,576,600. It would cost about one-half of 1 per cent. to collect it. Some of our taxes now cost 5 per cent. to collect.

Mr. Rothschild advocates the repeal of the war-time nuisance taxes on admissions and dues, automobiles and parts, cameras and lenses, films and plates, firearms, mah jongh, works of art, jewelry, bowling alleys, pool and billiard tables, stamp taxes, brokers and other miscellaneous taxes. This would cut income by $263,800,000.

Repeal of estate and gift taxes would incur further loss of $114,000,000. To do away with the corporate capital stock tax would cost another $93,000,000.

This would involve a total loss of revenue of $470,800,000, before any thought is given to reduction in personal income taxes.

But suppose there was no personal income tax?

You would have to start with receipts of $1,000,000,000 from customs and internal revenue imposts on tobacco, oleomargarine, alcohol, etc.

Then collect your 1 per cent. on the more than TWO HUNDRED BILLION DOLLARS' worth of business done in this country in a year, and you have little or no need for an income tax.

The entire burden of the Federal Government would be borne by two classes of taxes—the customs and revenue and the sales tax.

The entire machinery of collection could be simplified to meet these two needs.

The entire machinery would be far simpler, for it is far easier to determine and collect a tax on gross receipts than it is on net income. There are far fewer opportunities for deceit.

College Aristocracy

Those Who Work Their Way Through Should Be So Considered

More than 3,400 students at Columbia, say the press reports, are working to help pay their way.

They sit up with the dead, act as chorus men in Broadway shows, clean streets, and do lots of other things.

Their Summer months are spent as life guards, boatmen, camp counsellors, operators of road stands and amusement park concessions.

Meanwhile most of the students are being paid for by their fond papas and mamas.

We never appreciate anything we don't have to work for. The reason why a horse eats what agrees with him is that he has to walk a long while for every bite.

Men never had bad teeth until they began to eat mush.

By the same token, those who work to put themselves through college should be considered the aristocracy of the intellectual world.

Instead of those students feeling sorry for themselves when they have to work in a retail store, or do other work in the late afternoon or evening, they should be proud to think that they are showing enough spunk to be worth an education.

A lot of boys who are sent to college and have their way paid are not worth the money it takes to support them.

Writing to Be Read

St. Paul was commented on in these columns only a short time ago as a person who understood the principles of journalism. Now it appears that in a newspaper referendum by a lot of French journalists he has been put, in that respect, next to Voltaire.

As the voters were French, it is no wonder that Voltaire walked away with the honor of being the ideal journalist. Possibly he would have won even if the votes had come from all who have read him.

Swift is certainly not his equal, nor is Hamilton, great as both are in knowing how to give strength and spice to explanations of things that matter. And that is what journalism is on its worthiest side.

Rough Russia

She Can Learn Gentleness From Us

Russia, with a short trial or none, inflicts what is called "the highest measure of punishment," by shooting, of grafters engaged in the Soviet State business.

For instance, though it may sound harsh to us good capitalistic republicans, our gentlemen that stole the naval oil reserves, had they done the job in Russia, would have been shot some time ago.

Russians, very rough, have much to learn in the way of refinement from our judicial methods.

Open Dealing

THE Italian debt negotiations have started well.

Perhaps the reason is that the head of the Italian mission is a business man before he is a politician.

He has frankly acknowledged his debt. He has set forth the basis upon which he thinks his country can pay.

And it is to be presumed that the estimate of what his country can pay is based upon the shrewd view of Italian affairs taken by the great commercial men and bankers of the north of Italy. These are the real men back of the Mussolini government.

Such a basis for negotiation with the business men of the American Debt Funding Commission is a better one than that basis which envisages only what some foreign government dare tax its people without suffering ejection from office.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

THE United States Treasury is planning to print our currency on heavier paper so that it'll last longer. This will be good news to the working man.

EVERY man who has a dollar today has to spend a dollar and a half to keep it.

GEORGE WASHINGTON has his face on millions of dollars while a lot of poor people can't even get their hands on ten bucks.

MONEY may be filthy, but whenever you give a man a five dollar bill he never calls up the board of health.

HE never has the money in his hands long enough for the germs to hop off of it.

THERE are very few people in the world who have to go to the trouble of putting moth balls in their pocket books.

CURRENCY is dangerous to handle, but luckily, most of us are always out of danger.

SOME people prefer to handle checks. They may not be any good, but they're cleaner.

IT'S up to you whether you'd rather be soiled and rich, or poor and sanitary.

THE government really should print our currency on fly-paper and then maybe it would stick to our wallets longer.

YOU'D think that the five dollar bills were printed on eel skin, they slip out of our hands so easily.

THEY ought to make fifty cent pieces with holes in them so that we could nail them in our pocket books.

AND then every time you wanted to spend a quarter you'd have to get the change out with a tack puller.

SILVER dollars should also be made with corners so that when you dropped one on the street it wouldn't roll into the gutter.

NICKELS and dimes ought to come equipped with four-wheel brakes.

OF course money isn't everything. It won't buy love. But if a man has a hundred thousand dollars he doesn't need love.

"You Said It, Marceline!"

—By MARCELINE D'ALROY—

ON "COMPROMISING DRESSING"

The DELIBERATE copying of MEN'S CLOTHES seems
To be getting
FUNNIER and funnier.
Or could it merely be
That the MEN themselves
Are becoming PECULIAR?
Men, THESE days, seem to
Women. For instance, WOMEN
USED to be INCONSISTENT,
But the WHOLE WORLD always
Knew just what to expect
From a MAN. Even his
OUTSIDE did not change.
For FORMAL occasions, you
Could count on his starched
BOSOM, and by DAY
His MANLY HEART was Covered by a DISCREET
Shirt. He always wore
STIFF collars and NARROW
Trousers, BROAD shoulders
And SUBDUED ties; and THEN
He LOOKED like something!
But NOW, with his "bellbottom"
Effects, BALLOON KNICKERS,
SOFT collars, HOT SOCKS and
FANCY waistcoats, he Looks like a hopeless
COMPROMISE between the
BEST of men and the WORST of women.

THE FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

Letters Must Not Contain More Than Two Hundred Words. No Anonymous Communications Will Be Considered.

Popularity of Charleston.

To the Friend of the People:

That new dance, the "Charleston," will not stand the test against the fox trot. The fox trot can put one over on the Charleston at every turn.

Of course, it is popular now because it is new, but it will not wear like the other dances.

Personally I would rather have the "Camel's Walk." That item in your paper that the Charleston would become the popular dance is doubtful. JOHN N. MANNING, Boston.

Vivid Imagination

To the Friend of the People:

That Harvard professor who has pronounced his judgment upon the Galilee skull, recently found in a Palestine cave, must have a vivid imagination.

This skull is thousands of years old. It belongs to the stone age. It is the skull of a woman. The professor claims that the stone was thrown at her by her husband and caused by a fracture resulting in death. Can you beat that for a flight of the imagination that comes down in a parachute of this mental kind? JOHN H. GOLDBERG.
Cambridge.

Sold as Slave

To the Friend of the People:

Can you give me the name and particulars about the professor who is now serving an institution as a teacher, where in his youth he was sold as a slave?
GEORGE HOUGHTON.
Brookline.

Professor A. F. Fulton, instructor in the Normal and Industrial Institution at Morristown, Tenn., is the one doubtedly referred to. He was sold from the same place on a block for $1,198 in his youth. —Ed.

Radio Keeps Us Home

To the Friend of the People:

The radio is getting to be more and more a great home circle promoter. Many of us used to spring for our coat and hat after the evening meal to find out what was going on down the street. But the radio now claims us. We talk about it constantly. We all gather in one room and listen in. Outside attractions have faded. Even the movies do not get us so often during the week. That talk over the radio from an expert on the care of the eyes gave us all a lot of useful information. These talks on different subjects are very valuable.
HARRY T. KELLEY.
Belmont.

Bible in the Schools

To the Friend of the People:

Please settle this dispute: "Is there anything in the statutes of Massachusetts compelling the use of the bible in public schools?"
JULIUS D. DAVENPORT.
Brighton.

Section 31 of the statutes of Massachusetts states: "A portion of the bible shall be read daily in the public schools. This law has been on the statutes for one hundred years.—Ed.

Use of Salt

To the Friend of the People:

In your column you referred lately to salt as a destroyer of fatigue.

Some years ago I read an article by an eminent medical authority that salt was unnecessary in the human body.

It is always to be used sparingly. It has a tendency to assist in the hardening of the arteries. If any of your readers can give any additional information about their experience with it, I shall be very grateful. WILLIAM H. DUDDY.
No. 13 Broadway, Somerville.

Fake Degrees

To the Friend of the People:

A professor in Harvard spoke the other day about the number of fake degrees which not a few clergymen have tagged on to their names to give the impression of learning. Many of these degrees have been looked up. There is one clergyman in Greater Boston who has to his name three degrees, which he has bought of colleges in the West and one in Massachusetts.

Something should be done either with these clergymen displaying these fake degrees, or with the college dispensing them along business lines. NORMAN H. WHITE.
Somerville.

MONEY IS STORED UP POWER

By DR. FRANK CRANE

PROBABLY nothing, with the exception of religion, brings out more hypocrisy than the subject of money.

The desire for money is legitimate.

For money is stored up power.

Its possession makes a man count for that much more in the world.

Money is like electricity or coal or dynamite.

It is latent force.

Hoarded it is potent but restrained. Like coal useless in the ground but turning the factory wheels when firing the furnaces its puissance become manifest only with use.

If you have a certain number of dollars you can buy the muscular power or the mental strength of a certain number of men for a day.

By the possession of these dollars your personal power is that much increased.

This power is condensed in the money.

Its possession means the individual becomes more free and capable thereby.

It means he will have more opportunity for travel and for education.

It means he can better help the things in which he believes.

It means that his word carries just that much more added weight.

The history of the world records the lessons that wealth has invariably meant power.

In the thirteenth century, the "golden age of Europe," the traders began to become rich. Immediately their power and political significance began to ascend.

When the House of Commons gained control of the purse-strings of the British Empire its power eclipsed that of the hitherto all-powerful upper body.

Both individually and nationally wealth signifies power.

Every man should strive for all the personal power he can legitimately get, and money is one of the aids to this end.

But it is well to remember:

To the world the only thing that matters is that you have the money; to yourself all that really matters is how you got it and what you are doing with it.

For character is the greatest of all sources of power.

Every man should get all the money he can honestly acquire.

But he should remember that on another plane he is judged on the more important question of how he uses this potential power he has acquired.

AMONG THE AUTUMN NUT TREES

By Garrett P. Serviss,

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

IN my youthful days, in the country where the Mohawk and Schoharie rivers join, in central western New York, there were still walnut trees to be seen. In other parts of the land they were numerous.

Then walnut furniture suddenly came into vogue and the trees disappeared. They were chopped down, sawed up and worked into chairs, tables, sideboards, bedsteads, desks, secretaries, doors, banisters, mantels, casements, stall (even horse stalls), and a multitude of other things about houses and buildings. This fad was contemporary with that for brownstone fronts in New York City.

It was a fad excusable for the beauty that it brought. But beauty must not be made too common. Black walnut, when of fine grain and skillfully polished, has few superiors in richness of appearance.

Some specimens are yet to be seen in the houses of old-fashioned people and in old-furniture shops, and some are worth their weight in silver.

A New Fad.

But whenever fashion succeeds in making the whole world, or a large part of the world, look all alike it begins to sicken of its work and starts a new fad, whereupon the human sheep chase one another over the fence again in a new place.

There came an end of the "black walnut craze" because people were surfeited with it, but it was too late to save the trees. The maw of the sawmill had devoured them.

Now the time has come—in fact, it really came years ago—when we ought to try to replace the walnuts. I feel this the more after seeing the abundance of walnut trees in France. In Burgundy and in the Vosges, for instance, they seem to grow everywhere. You cannot take a walk on a hillside, among the cows, or follow a path across the valley fields, or even keep along a main highway without always finding some of them at hand.

In late September and early October the nuts are continually falling.

One may hit you a friendly rap on the head as you are walking on a metalled "departmental road," where the autos hum. I see a woman ahead of me suddenly stoop and pick up something and put it in her pocket. Women have pockets, though they only know where they are.

A roadside tree leans over her and the pavement is browned with fallen leaves, so I know what it is that she has found, and I know, too, its irresistible attraction. As I pass the place where she was, there is a slight rattle overhead and a descending streak in the air, followed by a muffled explosion at my feet, as a little green shell bursts apart and discloses a fresh, light-brown nut that draws the eye and the hand as would a gold nugget.

Our Own Trees.

These nuts are such excellent "eating" that most finders cannot wait to get home with them, but strew the way with provoking shells—for when they are fresh they can be crushed in the hand. For all that I know, these nut-bearing walnuts may, somehow, differ from the trees that we used to turn into furniture.

If that be so, then we should as soon as possible supply ourselves with some of the French kind.

We have never properly appreciated and taken care of our own nut trees of various kinds. They do these things better in Europe. Half a generation ago we saw our chestnuts swept off by an invasion of insect enemies. There are great numbers of magnificent chestnuts in France, and in Sicily the chestnuts "are a dream." Perhaps we treat the insects too pacifistically.

Old Americans remember the splendid hickories of former days. They are few today. I would travel miles to see a good one. They too have their unterrified insect enemies; and then—hickory wood is so firm, so tough, so elastic, so excellent in working, so good for handles to tools, for axe helves, wheel rims, and a hundred other mechanical purposes, that these noble trees with their toothsome, nutritious nuts have all but passed into the dreamland of memory.

PAY FOR NECESSITIES ERE BUYING LUXURIES

Is it difficult for you to control a desire to buy some luxury whether or not you can afford it?

You realize the money you get should pay your creditors or buy necessities.

Instead of putting the coveted purchase out of your mind, you think and think of it till you finally get it.

Then when your bills come in you are so filled with disgust at your foolishness that you do not enjoy these articles at full value.
